WELL TECH 2010 SUSTAINA [...] IED Design shows 7 project in Palazzo Isimbardi

Well Tech 2010 sustainable design

Well-Tech Village 2010 is a prestigious event connected to Well Tech Award, an international award for technological innovation organized in collaboration with Province of Milan, aiming at recognizing innovative contents, excellence of materials, housing products and technologies together with the commitment to research and development of the most innovative companies.

Because of the project approach and the care for the environment and territory they share, Istituto Europeo di Design of Milan has been involved for the second year in the event-exhibition Ecospitality, together with some of the leading international companies for innovation, sustainability and design.

The show is staged at Palazzo Isimbardi, seat of the Province of Milan, from April 13th to 19th.

An area of Well-Tech Village 2010 will be dedicated to the exposition of the most remarkable Final Projects developed by IED Design Milan students addressing interior and industrial themes and selected for their high social and environmental values.

Among these, the innovative Final Project on sustainable urban mobility developed last year in collaboration with Well-Tech and under the aegis of Province of Milan, Chamber of commerce of Milan and Municipality of Milan.

Inauguration: April 13th, h 7 pm
Opening Exhibition: April 14th - 19th, h 10 am - 10 pm
